

Inaccuracies in CIS Report on Immigrant Workers in Georgia

A report released on June 20, 2007, by the Center for Immigration Studies (CIS) argues that the increase in the number of less-educated immigrant workers in Georgia between 2000 and 2006 caused employment levels among less-educated natives to decline. However, there is no evidence of a direct, negative relationship between employment levels for immigrants and natives in Georgia.

Published On: Fri, Jun 22, 2007 | Download File [1]

Source URL:

<http://immigrationpolicy.org/just-facts/inaccuracies-cis-report-immigrant-workers-georgia>

Links:

[1] <http://immigrationpolicy.org/sites/default/files/docs/Georgia.pdf>