

Competing for Global Talent: The Race Begins with Foreign Students

To retain its competitive edge in global knowledge production and its leadership in research and education, the United States must remain open to talented people from around the world. However, the status of the United States as the preferred destination for foreign students and scholars faces serious challenges. As global competition intensifies for professionals and high-tech workers, doctors and nurses, and university students and researchers, will the United States remain in the forefront in attracting the best and the brightest?

Published On: Fri, Sep 01, 2006 | Download File [1]

- Special Reports
- Demographics
- Immigration and Unemployment
- National Legislation

Source URL:

<http://www.immigrationpolicy.org/special-reports/competing-global-talent-race-begins-foreign-students>

Links:

[1] http://www.immigrationpolicy.org/sites/default/files/docs/Batalova Students.pdf