

Power and Potential: The Growing Electoral Clout of New Citizens

Immigrants – and groups in which immigrants are a large percentage of the population, such as Latinos and Asian/Pacific Islanders (APIs) – are a growing portion of the U.S. electorate. In a closely contested presidential race, the growing ranks of “new citizens” – foreign-born individuals who become “naturalized” U.S. citizens – are increasingly important political players.

Published On: Fri, Oct 01, 2004 | Download File [1]

- Special Reports
- Demographics
- Elections

Source URL:

<http://www.immigrationpolicy.org/special-reports/power-and-potential-growing-electoral-clout-new-citizens>

Links:

[1] [http://www.immigrationpolicy.org/sites/default/files/docs/Power & Potential \(web\).pdf](http://www.immigrationpolicy.org/sites/default/files/docs/Power & Potential (web).pdf)