

American Roots in the Immigrant Experience

The U.S. Census Bureau recently released data on the Latino population of the United States that underscores the extent to which the immigrant experience is embedded in the social (and political) fabric of the United States. The political significance of these statistics is apparent in the most recent IPC Fact Check. Latinos comprise the fastest-growing group of voters in the United States. The number of naturalized U.S. citizens is increasing rapidly and the electoral clout of New American voters who share a direct, personal connection to the immigrant experience—that is, naturalized citizens and the U.S.-born children of immigrants—is on the rise.

Published On: Mon, Oct 19, 2009 | Download File [1]

- Just the Facts
- Demographics
- Elections
- Integration and Citizenship
- Policy

Source URL: <http://www.immigrationpolicy.org/just-facts/american-roots-immigrant-experience>

Links:

[1]
http://www.immigrationpolicy.org/sites/default/files/docs/American_Roots_in_the_Immigrants_Experience_101909.pdf