NEW AMERICANS IN OUR NATION’S CAPITAL:
The Political and Economic Power of Immigrants, Latinos, and Asians in Washington, D.C.

Immigrants, Latinos, and Asians account for growing shares of the economy and electorate in Washington, D.C. Nearly one-in-eight Washingtonians are immigrants (foreign-born), and more than a third of them are naturalized U.S. citizens who are eligible to vote. “New Americans”—immigrants and the children of immigrants—account for 9.7% of registered voters in D.C. Immigrants are not only integral to the D.C. economy as workers, but also account for billions of dollars in tax revenue and consumer purchasing power. Moreover, Latinos and Asians (both foreign-born and native-born) wield $2.9 billion in consumer purchasing power, and the businesses they own had sales and receipts of $1.5 billion and employed between 8,986 and 13,935 people at last count. At a time of economic recession, Washington, D.C. can ill-afford to alienate such a critical component of its labor force, tax base, and business community.
